County School Board Okays Greenbelt Boundary Changes

by David Morse

The Prince Georges County Board of Education on June 10, unanimously approved school district boundary changes that will enable the return to Greenbelt of elementary school students in several of the areas that were bused out of the community. They were to attend the new Greenbelt Elementary School which is to open this fall.

The students, who reside in Boxwood Village, Lakeside North Belle Point, University Square, and Charlestowne Village, are currently bused to John Carroll Elementary School in Landover as part of the county-wide effort to comply with a 1973 federal court order integrating Prince Georges County schools.

The court order grew out of a lawsuit filed in 1972 by the Prince Georges County chapter of the NAACP on behalf of eight black students. At that time, although almost three-quarters of the students in county schools were white, many black students were attending all-black schools.

The board's willingness to consider such boundary changes may have been affected by two factors. First, a Supreme Court ruling in 1991 gave lower courts more leeway in lifting desegregation orders. Second, the proportion of white students attending county schools dwindled to less than one-third, and is expected to drop still further over the next decade. It has therefore become increasingly difficult to comply with the numerical guidelines mandated by the court order.

Public Hearing

Prior to the vote of the school board, a public hearing was held to allow for citizen comment on the proposed boundary changes. The Greenbelt boundary changes were paired with another set involving students attending schools in other communities. Three public officials, including Greenbelt Mayor Gil Weidenfeld spoke at the public hearing, as did private citizens. No one opposed the proposal.

In prepared remarks, Weidenfeld said, "(O)ur goal must be to increase the sense of community of our citizens in every geographical area of this county.

"To achieve this goal, Prince Georgians must learn to identify with their community so they will care more about their neighborhood and their neighbors. An important part of community identification is a direct relationship with the schools that serve the community.

"This proposed reassignment is a positive step for strengthening the sense of community and for saving transportation costs."

Delegate Jim Hubbard (D-23rd) District) also spoke in support of the proposal. He urged the board to broaden its reassessment beyond the proposals immediately before it. Said Hubbard, "I think we need to be talking about community-based local schools, more parent participation, less money on transportation, more money on resources and books, and the teachers that are necessary in those schools." Hubbard added after the hearing that he felt it was politically risky to speak on such issues. "A lot of state legislators I've talked to have said 'Don't get involved.' It's only an issue that you can lose by." He explained that the people affected by the proposals all lived in his district, and "there's always going to be some people that don't want it and there's people who do want it."

Fred Robinson of the Bowie City Council also urged the school board to make a broader reconsideration of busing policy. "The Bowie City Council urges you to draw up a new approach toward community schools to help this county continue to be defined by educational excellence. . . . (Our task) is to prepare over a hundred thousand inquiring minds for life in the 21st century. . . . Future Prince Georgians will note what we did when we faced these challenges. They will note whether we came together for the best interests of our children or whether we did not. We urge you to . . . revisit the entire court-ordered busing issue, act as a forum to shape public opinion, and use that forum offered by your board, to build a county-wide consensus on those issues."

Comprehensive Review?

Hardi Jones, president of the Prince Georges County chapter of the NAACP, said his organization supports the proposal. He also noted the NAACP's concerns about "the whole transportation issue." He asked that a comprehensive review be made of the busing patterns to all schools where the proportion of black students exceeds 67 percent in order to see if they are in compliance with the time and distance requirements in the court order. He added, "We think it is ludicrous . . . to continue to bus black students from one school to another where the percentages are outside of (i.e., higher than that specified in) the 1972 court order." After the hearing, Jones elaborated on his remarks saying, "We're paying for stupid policies and practices up until 1972." He urged fresh thinking on the subject, saying that, while the NAACP was not going to ask that the federal court order be lifted, he personally thought it was possible if sound plans for improving the schools could be devised.

A Greenbelt resident, Jim O'Reilly, spoke at the hearing. He said that, although he was

by Sandy Smith

Now is the time to plan a booth in the 1993 Labor Day Festival. Carnival booths—selling food conducting various games and activities, presenting information and services—are the heart of the annual Labor Day weekend.

Community groups use the booths as an opportunity to communicate with citizens and neighbors in Greenbelt and surrounding areas and support the local festival. Many groups also use the carnival time as fundraiser to support their activities throughout the year. Applications for booths are now being distributed to all groups which had a booth last year. If anyone has not received an application contact Carnival chair J tend the meeting.

GHI Board Seeks Search Consultant, Pay Disclosure

by Betty Timer

Once again, disclosure of employees salaries was a key issue for the Board of Directors of Greenbelt Homes Incorporated (GHI). At the June 10 meeting, Vice President Carole Levin moved, "That a list be made and kept up to date of the exact salaries of the general manager and GHI employees by job title. This information should be given to all board members at least once a year."

It was seconded by Treasurer Chuck Hess. Hess, speaking to the motion, felt that approving this motion would "reduce the power of the manager and place the board in a micromanagement position — a position it has never had before." Board member John O'Boyle rebutted that the intent is not to undercut management, but to monitor it.

Wayne Williams, board secretary, amended the motion by adding, ". . . so that the information was available to the board when seated as a group in executive session and that the information could not be carried physically out of the executive session by board members." This amendment passed 5-2.

Before action on the amended motion was taken, O'Boyle requested President Alan Freas to give his insights. Freas stated that he felt disclosure could be harmful to employee morals but he could vote for this particular motion. All board members voted in favor of this motion except Chuck Hess.

After the agreed-upon 30 minutes of discussion, a motion for the disclosure to occur at the next board meeting was defeated. Then, Levin requested that the disclosure issue be continued at the next board meeting in July.

GDC Meeting

The evening began with a brief meeting of the Greenbelt Development Corporation (GDC) Board of Directors. This subsidiary of GHI manages apartments it owns and rents. Manager Colton said that the utility costs were right on target and that "we expect to do a little bit better than budget although all needed repairs have not yet been completed."

During the member concerns portion of the meeting Eunice Coxon stated she was a member of the last Bylaws Revision Committee. She stated, "We did an excellent job! We do not need the proposed revisions of the bylaws, especially if the purpose is to delete the power of the audit committee." Director Wayne Williams responded that while bylaws revisions are being considered none are currently proposed.

Save Our Buses

Save Our Buses (S.O.B.) had its first meeting on May 10 because of the proposed cuts and eliminations of Greenbelt's buses and many other buses in communities in the surrounding jurisdictions.

The petition drive, which started about six weeks ago, has amassed upwards of 1,500 signatures. The press coverage has been good. Irene Hensel represented S.O.B. at a Civic Federation meeting on June 3 and spoke about the bus cuts. On June 24, Citizens for Greenbelt will have a panel discussion about transportation in which a representative of S.O.B. will be a panelist. S.O.B. is urging all persons concerned to write and/or call their representatives about the bus cuts.

The next meeting is on Wednesday June 30 at 7 p.m. at the Greenbelt Police Station. All citizens are invited. Discussion will center around the public hearings to be held by WMATA on Wednesday, July 7 at Northwestern High School and on Thursday, July 8 at Eleanor Roosevelt High School at 7:30 p.m.

pleased with the education his oldest son had received at John Carroll Elementary School, it had become burdensome to maintain his involvement as a parent after his two sons ended up being bused to different schools in different areas of the county. Therefore, he said, "After lifelong support of public school education — and considerable deliberation — I removed my oldest son from public school in December of 1992." sending him to St. Hugh's parochial school in Greenbelt. He said he had also intended to send his other son to St. Hugh's until he learned of the proposed boundary changes.

JOE'S TIPS OF THE WEEK

Hello again ! ! !

Many customers preparing for their vacation trips ask us to look over the vehicle to see how it checks out, or if we see any areas that could be a problem on the road. I think the most asked question is "do you think my vehicle will make the trip?" This is a tough question to answer. There are many potential trouble spots that can be avoided if you follow a preventive maintenance schedule.

Sometimes everything visible checks out good but right smack in the middle of your trip a radiator hose blows or a drive belt breaks.

I speak a lot about drive belts and hoses because these are two of the most wearable components that will leave you walking. A good rule of thumb is if drivebelts and hoses are over 4 years old replace them. They tend to dry rot and deteriorate from the inside out so that the weak spots are not easy to detect.

TILL NEXT TIME
THINK PREVENTIVE MAINTENANCE ! !

Member Mary Jo Murray requested that GHI waive its sublease administrative fee for her unit. What began as a 15-minute discussion was extended four times by the board. Then, Williams observed that the final motion established GHI policy rather than addressing the initial problem of a specific member. Freas concurred and tabled the issue until the next meeting.

New Tables

Replacement tables for GHI's board room triggered another debate. Hess felt that it was time to make a change. Director Don Comis felt that this expenditure ($7,700) during current economic conditions sends a bad signal to the membership. Both Kathleen Weber and Bill Phelan stated that this new furniture was too expensive. Jay Freedman, director of technical services, responded that this room and its furniture was a new member's first impression of GHI. The current tables—made by GHI—were too heavy to move when the room was used for another function such as a blood drive or a large meeting. Freedman indicated that he has researched many sources to find similar moveable tables and that this was the lowest proposal. The manager stated that this capital expenditure would be depreciated over seven years. By a 4-3 vote, the board accepted this first reading regarding the purchase of three conference tables.

Search Consultant

Finally, the board directed their Search Committee to draft a Request for Proposal (RFP) to hire a consultant who would assist in the recruitment of GHI's next manager. The committee submitted two items for the board's consideration — a proposed job description and an advertisement for the position/vacancy. The board decided to provide feedback for these items to the Search Committee within the next week. The board assured Nat Shinderman that the Search Committee was going in the right direction.
